The telegraph on Saturday told us of the horrible murder of Mrs. Fanny Willard, fabled actress of the New York Sunday Times, by policeman Tim. Bunting, of the New York police. The cause of Love and Jealousy was the cause. Mrs. Willard had rejected his suit.

SHREVEPORT.—We have had dangerously slippery sidewalks already this winter, and are likely to have them again. Especially on Saturday night pedestrians had a decidedly downward tendency. Snows are generally followed by thaws, and thaws by frosts. Slushy and damp pavements are, under the last named influence, soon converted into mud-traps upon which old people, infirm people, careless people, and people in a hurry are generally thrown down; and although most of them happily escape without serious injury, it sometimes happens that others break bones, and others are made cripples for life. Rigid execution of the city ordinances is strictly impartial. Mr. Morrison, the proprietor, has introduced this price-giving to induce people to advertise the exhibition and influence their friends to patronize it. Now, as we speak to more people every day than any recipient of ice-pitchers, blouses, sets of china, etc. we put in our claim for the piano which is to be donated this week. Don't forget. Mr. Morrison, we claim the piano as our share for besieging large audiences for you.

Rigid execution of the city ordinances would prevent some of these accidents, and a slight display of care and humanity on the part of our citizens prevent others. One of our old humanitarians used to say that he could always tell where the benevolent people lived, from finding ashes on their pavements. At such times canes be made good use of, but there is an objection in that article on account of its inelasticity. A most excellent substitute will be found in sand, which will soil neither dress nor carpets, and costs comparatively nothing.

SHREVEPORT.—Yesterday was one of the loveliest days we remember to have ever seen in the dead of winter. It was like a sunbeam breaking through the bosom of a cloud—a sweet smile upon a face of sorrow. Winter objects stretched out on all sides—a drift of snow upon the ground, ice gorging the river, and slippery, dangerous sidewalks beneath our feet. As the sun neared the meridian he poured down so generous a flood of warmth, that the chill was taken from the air, and we felt a buoyancy, a lightness, a bounding of heart and blood and artery that remedied all the earlier days of spring, when nature confers upon all things the life and fullness she imparts to the inanimate. It required no great stretch of the imagination to catch the scent of blossoming buds and hear the twitterings of the garrulous swallow. The church-bells pealed out in soft and silvery tones, and all the world seemed indeed at rest. It was a verily God's day.

—Its early scenes rest on the earth. And lighting up the sky.

SHREVEPORT.—At five minutes of nine o'clock, last night, an alarm was sounded from No. 41 corner of Main and Sixth streets, caused by fire being discovered in the second story of Sherman P. Whaley's Auction and Commission Rooms, on Main, between Seventh and Eighth. The building was entered through a back window by bystanders, and the flames extinguished before they succeeded in doing much damage, and before the steamer reached the spot. From all the indications we are clearly of the opinion that it was the work of an incendiary. The torch was evidently applied to some cotton goods—mattress sacks, &c.—some of which were destroyed, and a quilt a horse in the room. One hundred dollars will cover the entire loss.

SHREVEPORT.—At a late term of the United States Court, J. G. Harris was tried, found guilty, and sentenced to pay a fine of six hundred dollars, two hundred and fifty dollars of which amount was, by order of the Court, awarded to the informer. Subsequent to the conviction of Harris, and during his imprisonment in default of paying the fine, President Johnson ordered the remission of $400, two-thirds of the penalty. Judge Ballard has invalidated the ruling of the President by deciding that the informer is entitled to his allowance of $250.

SHREVEPORT.—Yesterday morning we had the pleasure of meeting at the United States Hotel our old and highly-esteemed acquaintance J. A. Rousseau, Esq., of Edmonton, Metcalfe county, from which county he is a representative in the lower branch of the Kentucky Legislature. He goes to Frankfort by this morning's train.
